The Community

Wahat al-Salam ~ Neve Shalom (WAS-NS) is a village in Israel of Jews and Palestinian Arabs of Israeli citizenship. Situated equidistant from Jerusalem and Tel Aviv-Jaffa, WAS-NS was founded in the early 1970s on land originally leased from the adjacent Latrun Monastery. By 2010, some 60 families had come to live in the village, with an equal number of Jews and Arabs. Eventually the village will include about 140 homes.

The members of WAS-NS are demonstrating the possibility of coexistence between Jews and Palestinians by developing a community based on mutual acceptance, respect and cooperation. Democratically governed and owned by its members, the community is not affiliated with any political party or movement. WAS-NS gives practical expression to its vision through various branches:

Bilingual, Binational Schooling

The idea of creating an educational framework that would express Wahat al-Salam ~ Neve Shalom's ideals of coexistence and equality was born together with the community's first children. The idea took shape in the form of a binational nursery, quickly followed by a kindergarten and a primary school. After several years of operation, these were opened also to children from outside the village. Today the school system extends from nursery to junior high school levels and enrolls more than 250 children, 90% of which come from surrounding Arab and Jewish communities.

Wahat al-Salam ~ Neve Shalom's educational system was the first Jewish-Palestinian bilingual children's educational program in the country. Its unique educational approach begins in the nursery and kindergarten. The Jewish and Palestinian teachers each speak exclusively in their own languages to all of the children. From an early age, the children begin to develop an awareness of their identity, culture and traditions. There is an atmosphere of openness and tolerance that encourages the children to understand, accept and appreciate each other.

The educational system is governed by the following principles:

- Equal participation by Jews and Palestinians in the administration and teaching.
- Providing a natural ongoing framework that enables the day-to-day meeting between children of the two peoples.
- Use of both Hebrew and Arabic in teaching all of the children.
- Nurturing each child's identity by imparting knowledge of his/her culture and tradition while inculcating respectful familiarity with the culture and tradition of the other people.

One of the goals of the WAS-NS educational system has been to establish this form of education as a viable model for emulation, particularly in cities or regions where there is a binational population. We believe that providing children with an educational environment which promotes understanding between the two peoples is an essential step on the road to a stable peace. In recent years we have been encouraged to see the development of further bilingual schools in Israel inspired by our early efforts.

The School for Peace

The School for Peace (SFP) was established in 1979 for the purpose of conducting outreach educational work. The SFP assimilates the principles upon which the Community was founded by engaging in encounter work between Arabs and Jews. This work is informed by the vision of a humane, egalitarian and just society. The goal of the encounters is to develop the awareness of the participants towards the conflict and their role in it, as well as to enable them to explore and evolve their identity through interaction with the other.

The School for Peace conducts the following programs:

1. Encounter workshops on the conflict for Jewish and Palestinian youth in Israel.
2. Encounter workshops, in-service training and seminars for adult groups, including teachers, journalists, lawyers, social workers and university students.
3. Encounter work between citizens of Israel and Palestine together with Palestinian NGOs.
4. Facilitator training courses.
5. Yearly graduates’ courses in cooperation with four Israeli universities.
6. Courses for empowerment of Arab and Jewish women.
7. Training courses (in its working methods) for persons from abroad.
8. Encounters for raising awareness towards intergroup conflicts within Arab and Jewish society.

The above programs are directed and facilitated by a joint Jewish-Palestinian staff. The facilitators have an academic background in social and behavioral sciences and are specially trained to work with conflict groups. During many years of experience, including intensive action-research, the School has developed an educational approach that places an emphasis on elements such as power relations and the exploitation of ethnic and national identities.

Some 45,000 young people have attended SFP encounters. More than three hundred adults have received training in conflict management skills, many of whom are now active in other organizations for social change. The SFP has established a research center for documentation and research on work conducted by the SFP and other organizations dealing with Jewish - Arab encounter, as well as the study of Jewish-Arab relations in general. In the future the SFP plans to establish a program for graduate studies in conflict and peace studies that will be conducted on-site. The school has won local and international recognition for its achievements, including prestigious awards and prizes. Publications describing its special working methods are now available in Arabic, Hebrew and English.

The Pluralistic Spiritual Centre is set apart on a pleasant corner of the hilltop and comprises the House of Silence (Bet Doumia /Bet as-Sakinah), for reflection and meditation (opened in the 1980s); and the Meeting, Prayer and Study House (opened 2006). Besides conducting its own events program, the Centre invites other groups to hire its facilities for activities of a compatible nature.

The Pluralistic Spiritual Centre was established at the initiative of WAS-NS founders Bruno Hussar and Anne Le Meignen.

Youth Club – Nadi al-Shabibah~Moadon Noar

A Youth Club provides a framework, throughout the school year and during vacations, for a variety of stimulating, fun and challenging extracurricular activities for the young people of the community. The Club is organized voluntarily by community members, run by a part-time salaried youth leader, and assisted by a growing number of parents and senior youngsters.

The objectives of the Youth Club are to foster and sustain interpersonal connections; to encourage voluntary community involvement; to increase awareness on issues of Palestinian-Jewish relations and social justice; to promote values of mutual acceptance and respect; and to generate individual and social responsibility towards peers, the immediate community, other Palestinian and Jewish communities, and the larger society.

The village's young people, on finishing the bi-lingual primary school, travel outside as they pursue their education and personal interests. The Youth Club provides the structure for them to stay together and continue to take part in the life of the community.

Humanitarian Aid

WAS-NS operates a program to provide humanitarian relief (usually but not exclusively medical) for Palestinian villagers affected by the ongoing conflict. The project is conducted by WAS-NS residents on a voluntary basis and is supported by donations of money and materials from Israel and abroad.
